First Frost of Season Hits

MERCURY DIPS TO 33 DEGREES; DAMAGE SLIGHT

Corn And Other Crops Said
To Have Escaped; Milder
Weather Scheduled

Jack Frost paid his first visit of the new season to the Circleville area, early Tuesday, the first day of Autumn.

The visit was brief, however, and no reports of damage were received.

Descent of the mercury to a low of 33 degrees above zero paved the way for the frost. The belated corn crop was endangered mostly by spokesmen for the Pickaway County Farm Bureau and county agent's office said the frost was not of sufficient duration to cause damage to the corn.

The thermometer plunged downward steadily Monday night and the 33-degree temperature was registered between 3 and 4 a.m. Tuesday.

A LOT OF Circleville area residents who shivered early Tuesday as a consequence of the sudden cold snap may be cheered by the official weather prediction of rising temperatures Tuesday night and Wednesday.

The official forecast said the mercury will rise to the 70-degree mark by Wednesday afternoon.

The high figure Monday was 60. The thermometer registered 44 degrees at 8 a.m. Tuesday.

THE AUTUMNAL equinox began Monday but Autumn was to begin, astronomically, at precisely 4:29 p.m. Tuesday. The season will end Dec. 21 with the Winter solstice.

Most families in the Circleville area made use of blankets and comforts Monday night and in not a few homes fires were built in furnaces and heating stoves.

The early-morning frost Tuesday was blamed for at least one (Continued on Page Two)

BRITISH TROOPS STAGE
SEARCH IN JERUSALEM

JERUSALEM, Sept. 23—British troops launched a sudden dawn search in the Oriental and Jewish districts of the Mea Shearim quarter of Jerusalem today and detained five persons.

Six hundred residents of the area were screened by the Britons.

Reliable Jewish quarters insisted that two Jewish women arrested on Sept. 13 as "top-wanted terrorists" were undergoing forced feeding in a government hospital after prolonged hunger strikes.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

There is good news from a biologist that man someday will live 150 years—or long enough to enjoy his social security.

Today any working man can retire at 65—living or dead.

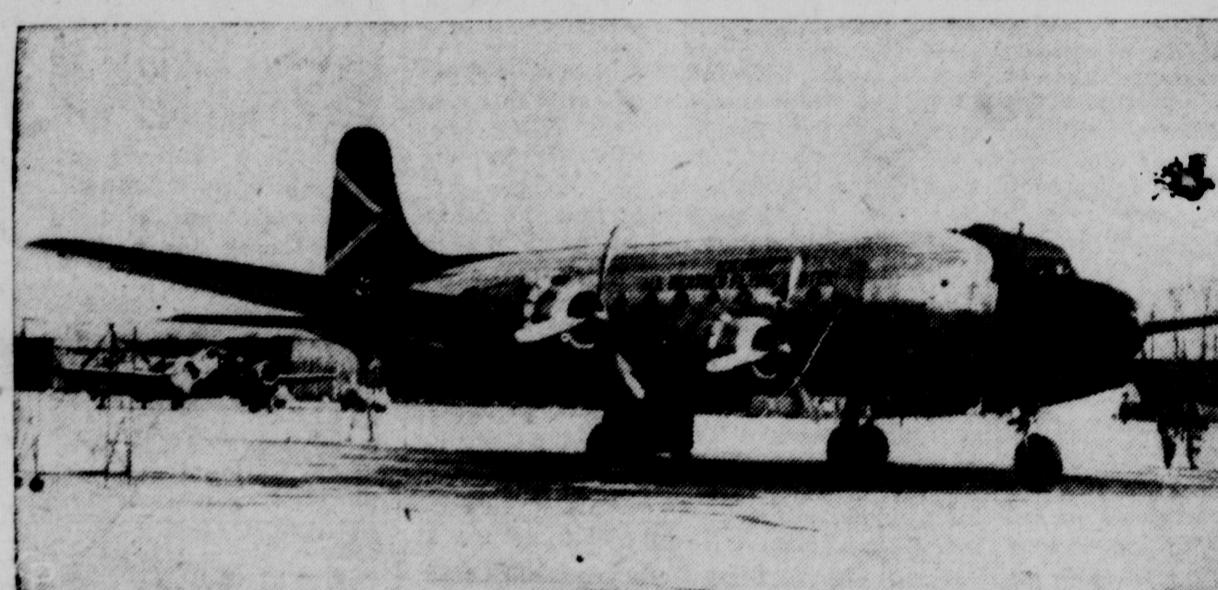

In fact if he's dead he has a better chance of living on his social security.

What we seem to be suffering from is an abundance of shortages and a shortage of abundance.

Advices to eat less are not welcomed by many people who had just begun eating—they found it habit-forming.

The one thing we have is money. This year the USA will pick up the check for 40 percent of the U. S. budget. At last we have found something that Gromyko won't veto.

And if 40 percent isn't enough we also will pay the tip.

THIS U. S. ARMY C-54 made history when it made the first "push-button" robot flight across the Atlantic. The four-engined Sky-Master, carrying 14 persons as "observers", completed a 2,400-mile hop from Gander, Newfoundland, to Brize Norton, west of London, in 10 hours and 15 minutes.

14 Men Who Made First Trip Automatically Controlled Laud Equipment

BRIZE NORTON AIRPORT, Eng., Sept. 23—The 14 men who made the first flight across the Atlantic in a robot plane were enthusiastic today in their praise of the craft's "perfect" equipment.

The 2,400-mile "push button" flight to Prizel Norton airport, 40 miles west of London, from Stephenville, Newfoundland was completed in 12 hours and five minutes.

Col. J. M. Gillespie, 52-year-old Texan in charge of the flight, said:

"We could have slept all the way in comfort."

"We were lucky at striking a good passage."

"THE WEATHER was perfect, except for a moderate rainfall about 150 miles west of Ireland. All of the equipment functioned perfectly."

"The controls were not touched from the time we touched the button at Stephenville until we taxied into the hangar at Brize Norton."

The navigation was pre-set into the equipment and was fully automatic all across the ocean.

TWO MILL LEVY FOR FAIRGROUND PUT ON BALLOT

Pickaway county voters will ballot at the Nov. 4 election on the question of a special 2-mill tax levy aimed to produce $100,000 to finance improvements to the county fairgrounds.

A certified copy of a resolution adopted Monday by the county commissioners was filed with the board of elections. The resolution is dated Sept. 22 and proposes the special levy for one year to finance the erection of additional buildings and for other improvements to the fairgrounds.

The certification bears the signatures of all three members of the board of commissioners, namely John B. Keller, Wayne R. Hoover and Lyman E. Penn.

CONNALLY HITS RUSSIAN BLASTS AGAINST U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—Sen. Tom Connally (D) Tex., warned today that the United Nations is "passing through a crisis" and accused the Soviet government of attacking the United States in an effort to strike at the U. N.

The ranking minority member of the senate foreign relations committee said that Russia is assailing this nation because the United States is UN's strongest supporter.

Advices to eat less are not welcomed by many people who had just begun eating—they found it habit-forming.

FLUSHING MEADOWS, N. Y., Sept. 23—U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie appealed to the East and West powers before the general assembly today to seek a negotiated compromise for the sake of world peace.

The robust Norwegian U. N. chief presented his appeal to the thousand delegates from 55 countries, in officially closing the first stage of U. N. general sessions at Flushing Meadows after a week of heated verbal clashes between the U. S., Britain and the Soviet Union.

The plenary occupied itself for the rest of the day in debating the provisional agenda, which the delegates expect to approve tonight and then switch to the first round of committee sessions at Lake Success.

REVISION SEEN IN TAFT-HARTLEY LABOR MEASURE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—Sen.

Morse (R) Ore., predicted today that pressure by employers as well as labor will bring "drastic" revision of the Taft-Hartley law next year.

Morse called the act a measure that touched off "bootleg contracts." He said that "We ought to repeal it, lock, stock and barrel, and start over."

The husband, she said, is a roofing worker who averages about $50 a week. He was at work when the family fled to the police station.

Denham announced that the action was filed in federal court at Chattanooga, Tenn., against local 74 of the AFL-United Brotherhood of Carpenters and its business agent, Jack Henderson.

The board charged that a secondary boycott, defined by the Taft-Hartley law as an unfair practice, had been launched by the union against Watson's specialty store in Chattanooga.

A hearing for arguments on the injunction petition was set for Sept. 30.

BULGARIAN FOE OF COMMUNISTS PUT TO DEATH

SOFIA, Sept. 23—Nikola D. Petkov, leader of the Bulgarian agrarian party and arch-foe of the Communist regime, was executed today on treason charges despite firm American and British requests for further review of his case.

All appeals against his death sentence were rejected by the Communist-controlled Bulgarian government.

Petkov was put to death 15 minutes after midnight at the central prison in Sofia in the presence of the prosecutor general.

Petkov was accused of engineering a plot to overthrow the Communist-dominated fatherland front.

Advices to eat less are not welcomed by many people who had just begun eating—they found it habit-forming.

'COWBOY' HURT, HORSE KILLED ON ROUTE 23

Roy Vincent In Hospital After Mount Is Hit By Automobile

Roy Vincent, 38, was in Berger hospital Tuesday suffering from injuries received at 8 p.m. Monday when the horse he was riding on U. S. Route 23, three miles north of South Bloomfield, was struck by an auto.

The five-year-old horse "Silver," died Tuesday morning. Although recently reported to hail from Great Falls, Mont. and to be enroute back to Montana following a horseback journey to Newark, N. J., Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff said Vincent told him he lives at Gloversville, N. Y. and that "Silver" was the property of his brother, Arthur Vincent, Gloversville.

Hospital attaches said the extent of Vincent's injuries had not been determined Tuesday morning.

DEPUTY RADCLIFF said

Glen Gouldner, 24, welder, Lockbourne, driver of the auto, explained that he was blinded by the headlights of a car following him and also by the lights of an approaching truck, and that he did not see the "cowboy" and horse in time to avoid the accident. Vincent was removed to the hospital in Deffenbaugh's ambulance.

The investigation is expected to last 18 months.

Fifteen dairy officials have been subpoenaed for the milk price investigation scheduled to start Oct. 2.

Haldor Mohat, an economist for the anti-trust division of the justice department, was the first witness called after the jury was sworn in yesterday.

EGGS PRICE UP

Wholesale price of eggs in Columbus increased two cents a dozen,

10 cents less than week ago.

Butter was down four cents to 85 cents a pound, a decline of 7 cents in a week. The wholesale price of beef carcasses dropped a dollar a hundred-weight and steaks were off 2 cents a pound retail.

New York milk producers, however, asked for a cent more a quart for milk.

THE GRAND jury probe high-lighted the price situation.

Retail price drops were reported in some area. In New York grade A white eggs fell two cents to 85 cents a dozen,

10 cents less than week ago.

Butter was down four cents to 85 cents a pound, a decline of 7 cents in a week. The wholesale price of beef carcasses dropped a dollar a hundred-weight and steaks were off 2 cents a pound retail.

Seidal analyzed the high price of various commodities by comparing the food dollar to the clothing dollar:

"All of us eat more in dollars than we wear, and the current prices of foods, particularly grains, meats and dairy products, are by a wide margin, the greatest influence on the increased cost of living."

He predicted that some of the critical shortage items will continue to rise. He said:

"Labor is, of course, the largest contributing element to the cost of any product. The myth that wages can be increased without increasing prices has certainly been exploded."

The hearings, being conducted in principal cities in the country, were authorized by the Baldwin resolution, which called for the three committees set up under the act to "make a full and complete study and investigation of the present high prices of consumer goods and to report to the congress not later than Feb. 1, 1948."

DENHAM SEEKS INJUNCTION IN FEDERAL COURT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—Robert Denham, general counsel of the national labor relations board, today sought the nation's first injunction under the Taft-Hartley act against an alleged unfair labor practice by a union.

Denham announced that the action was filed in federal court at Chattanooga, Tenn., against local 74 of the AFL-United Brotherhood of Carpenters and its business agent, Jack Henderson.

PRICE INQUIRY BEGINS TODAY AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Sept. 23—A congressional subcommittee investigating high prices began hearings today in Cleveland.

Congressman George H. Bender, (R) Ohio, chairman of the mid-continent subcommittee of the joint committee of the economic report, declared "all prices are at high levels because of the high cost of government."

Seidel declared at a public hearing that the cost of government and the resulting high tax rates have a very direct and major effect on our price structure.

Seidel analyzed the high price of various commodities by comparing the food dollar to the clothing dollar:

"All of us eat more in dollars than we wear, and the current prices of foods, particularly grains, meats and dairy products, are by a wide margin, the greatest influence on the increased cost of living."

TRUMAN PLANS NATION-WIDE RADIO APPEAL

Special Session Of Congress
To Study World Situation
Said Possibility

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—President Truman conferred anew today with Secretary of Agriculture Anderson on the food-price crisis.

White House observers believed that the chief executive, who soon will urge the nation to adopt voluntary food rationing in order that Europe's crucial needs may be met, sought further clarification of the problem.

However, neither Anderson nor the White House would comment on the conference.

Mr. Truman's proposed solution of the present food crisis was disclosed today by a source close to the cabinet.

The chief executive is expected to make his nationwide appeal for a voluntary food "austerity" program of living in a radio "Fireside Chat" to the nation this weekend.

THE PRESIDENT'S decision on whether or not he will call Congress into special session will be made separately on the basis of a lengthy first-hand report on the international situation, with special emphasis on the Marshall Plan. The report was presented to Mr. Truman by Secretary of State George C. Marshall and Under-Secretary of State Robert Lovett.

There was a possibility that Mr. Truman may summon a special session of congress for Nov. 15, although there was no official comment.

This would give congress a month's time before the beginning of the Christmas holidays to get the wheels rolling for substantial American aid to Europe.

Marshall and Lovett are reported to have told Mr. Truman that there is an urgent and immediate need for as much as two and a half billion dollars worth of American relief to keep western Europe from starving and freezing this winter.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN devoted his entire day Monday to a series of highly important conferences dealing with the European situation and the domestic food problem.

The President conferred at length with Marshall and Lovett. After this intensive "fill in" on the international situation, Mr. Truman sat down with members of his cabinet for another extended discussion of both foreign and domestic problems.

These two skull sessions were followed by a meeting with members of the President's special cabinet committee on food problems.

ABANDON HOPE FOR SAFETY OF MISSING GIRL

MARION, O., Sept. 23—The father of missing 16-year-old Roxie Ann Green today gave up hope for the safe return of the pretty Prospect High School student who dropped from sight Friday night on her way home from a football game.

Carl Green, the brunet's father, said he believed his daughter had met with foul play and would be found dead. Green planned to fly over the fields near his Prospect home today in an effort to find her body.

Green, a section foreman for the C. and O. Railroad, holds a private pilot's license and was to fly the plane himself. He added, however, that he would attempt to enlist the aid of other pilots to form an "air posse" to widen the search for the girl.

Meanwhile, the Marion County sheriff's office denied a report that the girl's skirt had been found in a field near her home, adding that "there never has been anything definite discovered since the first day."

Rising temperatures were forecast for the entire northeastern area where the frost and cold temperatures predominated this morning. The mercury dropped to 25 degrees at Phillipsburg, Pa., for probably the lowest reading in the affected area.

Utica, N. Y. had a low of 26, it was 28 degrees at Cadillac, Mich., and 35 degrees at Chicago. It was warming up in the Northwest, with Minnesota reporting no lower readings than the 40's.

CLOUDY AND warmer conditions were forecast for tomorrow, with the possibility of scattered showers over Ohio by tomorrow night.

In Cleveland this morning it was the coldest since last May 30 and the 37 degrees set a new low record for Sept. 23 in the sixth city. The previous record was 39 degrees in 1913.

The autumnal equinox will occur at 4:39 p.m. EST today. The occasion measures the exact time when the days and nights are of equal length.

Klemetsmo said that many persons were calling today for the exact time of the equinox and for other data such as wind direction and temperatures. He said that amateur weathermen, through various methods which they refuse to divulge, combine these various factors and come

TAFT TO DEFEND LABOR BILL IN SEATTLE SPEECH

EN ROUTE TO SEATTLE WITH SENATOR TAFT, Sept. 23—Sen. Robert A. Taft, (R) O., faced the prime test of his presidential "popularity" tour today as he entered the north west to defend the Taft-Hartley law in labor-tough Seattle.

The GOP leader indicated he might be getting set for a fighting speech in Seattle tonight by lashing out for the first time on his tour against democratic leaders who took issue with his criticism of president Truman's price policies.

Taft's speeches so far in California and Nevada, his first stops in a six-state western swing, have impressed his listeners as carefully-prepared, factual arguments setting forth the republican position. Even to Taft followers they have not been "stem-winders" in the political campaign sense.

Proposal Which Results In Lower Income Tax Slated For Congress

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—GOP fiscal leaders in congress are believed today to have reached a virtual agreement to extend to the entire country the community property tax law now effective in 13 states.

Congressional tax experts estimate such a step would mean an annual saving of approximately $44 million dollars in personal income taxes to America's "middle class" in the remaining 35 states.

There has been no indication from the White House that the President has changed his twice-repeated statement that now is not the time to reduce taxes. Republican leaders have made it clear, however, that they intend to try again.

The vetoed bills would have given taxpayers a cut of some four billion dollars a year in their personal income taxes.

LA GUARDIA'S FAME

FIORELLO H. LaGUARDIA, who has just died, was perhaps the most eminent American of Italian origin. He served 12 years as mayor of New York City, the longest tenure in its history. This was all the more remarkable because LaGuardia was not a member of either major party. Formerly a Republican and once elected to congress with Socialist support, he had been for years a member of the American Labor party, an organization, despite its name, confined to New York state. To be elected he had to combine a group of conflicting minor parties and overcome the city's normal overwhelming Democratic majority. This he did three times.

As mayor, LaGuardia can fairly be called the best the city ever had. The high standards of his administration forced opponents to meet them if they were to stand any chance in the election. That is why his Democratic successor, William O'Dwyer, completely outclasses the O'Briens, Walkers and Hylans who led the party before LaGuardia.

No account of the "Little Flower" would be complete without mentioning his violent temper, which kept his subordinates on their toes, and his enthusiastic support of the New Deal, which in 1940 and 1944 was largely responsible for keeping New York in the Roosevelt column.

THE TRIBUNE AND THE UN

IN AN editorial the Chicago Tribune assails what it terms the fallacy of believing the United Nations is proved possible by the history of the federation of the American states. The case for the UN is hopeless, says the Tribune. Sovereign nations will not submit to international law or international force.

The Tribune may be partially correct. The struggle of the American colonies toward unity does not prove the UN will be successful. One does not derive proof or prediction from history.

But the Tribune may be doing grave damage to the hope which can be soundly derived from our early struggles. In explaining the differences between colonial America and the present world situation the newspaper minimizes difficulties of the earlier period. To achieve unity was a tremendous accomplishment in the face of formidable obstacles, an accomplishment which should lend encouragement no matter how difficult the obstacles now. If the task today is more formidable, it is none the less urgent. Consequences of its failure may be more disastrous.

Russian leaders are thought to be expecting the American economic system to break down in the next few years. All this news of skyrocketing prices must make them think they are right.

Price Control Return

Marshall Plan Could Bring Labor Shortage

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Despite soaring prices, do not look for any restoration of government price controls. There is virtually no chance that they will come back.

Congressional leaders of both parties are convinced that the American people would never stand for a return of the OPA or anything like it in the peacetime economy. Although a control program might get labor support, the entire business community could be expected to fight it vigorously and effectively.

However, one step against rising prices may be in the form of tightening of export controls. The government may see fit to act in response to the growing protest against sending American goods out of the country in a period of domestic scarcity.

Another, less tangible move may be a step-up in the administration's pleas to business for price reductions. These pleas, begun months ago, have thus far failed to produce any clear cut result.

Incidentally, the Marshall Plan for aiding Europe may contribute to even higher prices here at home. Shipments of supplies overseas can be expected to increase demand here, and when demand goes up, so do prices.

Many government economists feel that the world aid program and the domestic price situation are closely related. They say the American consumer is going to pay for European aid through higher prices for almost everything he buys.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The National Broadcasting company has reached the conclusion that a heavy diet of murder for children is not particularly beneficial to them, their parents or the country in which they live. They will postpone murder until 9:30 p.m., EST after January 1. Children interested in murder may have their fill of it until the new schedule goes into effect, although it is difficult to understand why if murder on the radio for children becomes carbolic acid on January 1, it is not carbolic acid today.

Meanwhile, it seems that Columbia, Mutual and American disagree with the N.B.C. They, it would appear, believe that murder is good for children at any time of the day or night, along with chewing gum, breakfast foods, and exterminators of body odors. That is why so many children put up their forefinger and make a noise like a machine gun. It is extremely stimulating to the young mind to make a noise like a machine gun. How often have I listened to the most enlightening conversations, lofty in machine gun. It is extremely stimulating to tone and mood, on the relative merits of "The Green Hornet" and "The Falcon," or whether "Gang Busters" is more exciting than "Murder Is My Hobby." And murder has become a hobby if a small boy does it to prove that he is not a sissy.

The networks will undoubtedly debate the educational value of murder during the next few months and maybe another Vice-President will lose his job, but it would be preferable if this subject were seriously discussed by parents, educators and clergymen who have a direct concern with the morals of their charges and who know that the radio cannot be suppressed in the home without creating such a rumpus as many parents seek to dodge. If wickedness is to be kept from the child until it has, at any rate, passed out of puberty and to the verge of discretion—murder, foul, brutal murder, often related in a nonchalant, calm manner, as though to the manner born—such recitals of murder must be kept from the home at the source of supply.

One of the officials of a radio network—does it matter which?—asked why so a p operas are not kept from the ears of children? I ask you, why not? That was a very good question, probably spoken from the heart.

If one listened only to the radio, say for a week, he could easily convince himself that in the United States murder is a usual occurrence, happening at half-hour intervals, that most marriages are utter failures, that while crime does not pay, it nevertheless is extremely interesting, that there is always a third wheel to every chariot—meaning each family—that the greatest concern of wise women is to help young ladies out of scrapes with married men.

On a Sunday afternoon, during the winter, crime comes on early, on the assumption, I suppose, that no one goes to church any more, certainly not to vespers. What a beautiful family picture: Mother is reading a 25-cent book on murder; father is listening to one murder on a network and John and Jane to another. Thus, the Sabbath is devoted to holy thoughts and polite doings, particularly when some raucous, eerie laugh comes into the room.

officials are talking about a further climb and the possibility of a manpower shortage next year.

The key to the situation is the Marshall Plan.

At the present time an estimated five million United States workers are engaged in the direct production of goods for export. But if the country embarks on a broad-scale aid program, such as envisioned by Secretary of State George C. Marshall, federal employment experts believe many more workers will be needed to turn out the materials to be sent abroad.

There will be a slump in employment in export production should the Marshall Plan be dropped and exports take a nose dive next year. Exports fell off slightly in June and July but not seriously enough to affect employment.

BACK IN NOVEMBER—The prediction on Capitol Hill is that Congress will return to Washington in November to tackle stop-gap aid to Europe.

Some prognosticators say the date will be Nov. 3 or 10. It is anticipated that key committees will be called back several weeks before the session opens to pave the way for the enactment of emergency legislation.

The committees which will probably be called back are those of foreign affairs in the House and Senate.

By conferring with the administration and holding early hearings, they could have the necessary legislation ready for action when the session gets going.

The appropriations committees of both Houses would not act until after Congress had authorized new funds, but they could hold their hearings simultaneously with those of the foreign affairs committee in the interest of time. Such action is rare, however.

Should Congress be called back, technically it will mean only a resumption of the session just ended, and not a special session. Congress did not adjourn in July, but merely recessed until Jan. 2. The second regular session is scheduled to open Jan. 6.

Symptoms of Larynx Cancer

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CANCER of the larynx is of two kinds.

One, called intrinsic, develops on or under the vocal cords. The other, called extrinsic, begins on the outside of the voice box and quickly spreads to other nearby areas.

It is of great importance to distinguish between these two forms, because both the treatment and the outlook for the patient depend on where the cancer is located.

Within The Larynx

The cancers within the larynx do not spread as rapidly as those on the outside. Changes in the voice are almost always the first symptoms to occur in the intrinsic type. These changes may amount to nothing more than huskiness and the tendency to clear the throat repeatedly. Tiredness and smoking make these symptoms worse, and thus the patient is likely to believe that the trouble with his voice is due to fatigue and smoking.

As the condition develops, however, the symptoms become worse until the patient is constantly hoarse. Pain does not occur until much later. At this time also, there may be coughing, shortness of breath, noisy breathing, anemia and loss of weight, as well as some difficulty in swallowing.

Percentage of Cure

In those cases of cancer within the larynx which are diagnosed early and treated by removal of the larynx, about eight out of ten are completely cured and have no recurrence.

The first symptoms of cancer occurring on the outside of the larynx consist of a feeling of throat irritation, a sensation of fullness in the throat, soreness and the tendency to swallow.

S. A. F.: What is meant by functional disorder of the heart? My heart beats rapidly when I awaken and then stops beating rapidly just as suddenly as it began.

Answer: A functional disorder of the heart means that the heart is not working as it should. Your symptoms may be due to such a disorder or to a condition known as paroxysmal tachycardia. You should have a careful examination made by your doctor to determine just what disorder is present; then proper treatment can be carried out.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN
"LOST SOMETHING?" Greg asked, and even in the dusky dark, his face looked white and hard.

"I—yes—" Gail stammered. Her voice died as Greg held out his hand toward her, and in it she saw the crumpled letter she had been seeking.

"Something such as this, for instance?" said Greg. His voice was cold and bitter, as it had been when she first came here. "A letter from your mother, perhaps, with an enclosure?"

Gail caught her breath and a small, cold hand closed hard about her heart as she stood looking with wide, sick eyes.

"You—you read it?" she whispered incredulously.

"Of course," said Greg, as though he thought that question pretty silly. "Naturally. It wasn't in an envelope and I thought it was a bit of advertising that you or Norah had hung down when you got the mail. And then I saw the enclosure, and after that I read the letter."

Gail waited, because she was too shaken for speech. And even before he spoke again, her heart seemed to fail fast so that if she moved a step she must tread on it.

"So I was right about you from the very first," said Greg at last. There was contempt and savage bitterness in his voice that stung like a whiplash. "You came here for no other purpose than to wind yourself into Uncle Charles' heart and wrangle more money out of him. You're even worse than I thought—the moment you found out that he had a few dollars in the bank, you wrote your mother and she promptly makes a demand for it."

"Oh—no!" it was a small, broken whisper.

"Don't lie," Greg flung at her. "You're lower than I dreamed any woman could be—unless it is your mother. You've come here, you've won her love, you've won our confidence—and now you are prepared to strike and make your getaway!"

His anger mounted but he managed to control it and to say huskily, "I wonder you don't adopt a theatrical career. Anyone with your acting ability and your looks ought to be a bang-up success."

"But Greg—let me—let me tell you how it was." She was so dazed and confused she could find no words with which to answer him, to make him listen to her, to convince him of her faith and her loyalty and her aversion to her mother's callousness.

She reached the sanctuary of her room and closed the door behind her with shaking hands. She huddled against the door, panting, shaken to the depths of her being. But at last she fought through to a sort of calm, almost a feeling of composure. She even managed a small, frightened, shaky laugh.

After all, Greg had a right to be angry. But Greg loved her; wisely, she knew that the very depth of his love was indicated by the strength of his anger at what he believed proof of her wickedness.

She had been wrong to run away from him. She should have faced him and made him listen and understand.

She pulled her shaking body erect and dashed the tears from her eyes with a trembling hand. She'd go down now and find Greg and explain everything, and he would have to believe. After all, the strength and the sureness of their love would forge a bridge of understanding across the gulf of this bitter scene. She was secure in Greg's love, once she had penetrated the fog and the darkness of his fury.

She leaned close to the mirror and brushed a powder puff over her face, trying to remove the signs of her violent weeping. She went down the stairs and paused at the kitchen door, where Kate was finishing up supper.

"Where's Greg?" asked Gail.

She knew her voice must sound fairly steady because Kate had looked up and smiled and answered her lightly.

"I saw him going down toward the stables," she answered. "I suppose he's gone to help Norah."

Gail nodded and went quickly out of the back door and down the steps toward the stables. By now the darkness was almost complete, but the path glimmered faintly before her and her feet knew it so well she could have followed it in the blackest night.

She was almost at the barn, in the shadow of a giant live oak, when a sound stopped her as suddenly as though a hand had been laid on her shoulder. It was the sound of Norah

LA GUARDIA'S FAME

FIORELLO H. LaGUARDIA, who has just died, was perhaps the most eminent American of Italian origin. He served 12 years as mayor of New York City, the longest tenure in its history. This was all the more remarkable because LaGuardia was not a member of either major party. Formerly a Republican and once elected to congress with Socialist support, he had been for years a member of the American Labor party, an organization, despite its name, confined to New York state. To be elected he had to combine a group of conflicting minor parties and overcome the city's normal overwhelming Democratic majority. This he did three times.

Meanwhile, it seems that Columbia, Mutual and American disagree with the N.B.C. They, it would appear, believe that murder is good for children at any time of the day or night, along with chewing gum, breakfast foods, and exterminators of body odors. That is why so many children put up their forefinger and make a noise like a machine gun. It is extremely stimulating to the young mind to make a noise like a machine gun. How often have I listened to the most enlightening conversations, lofty in machine gun. It is extremely stimulating to tone and mood, on the relative merits of "The Green Hornet" and "The Falcon," or whether "Gang Busters" is more exciting than "Murder Is My Hobby." And murder has become a hobby if a small boy does it to prove that he is not a sissy.

The networks will undoubtedly debate the educational value of murder during the next few months and maybe another Vice-President will lose his job, but it would be preferable if this subject were seriously discussed by parents, educators and clergymen who have a direct concern with the morals of their charges and who know that the radio cannot be suppressed in the home without creating such a rumpus as many parents seek to dodge. If wickedness is to be kept from the child until it has, at any rate, passed out of puberty and to the verge of discretion—murder, foul, brutal murder, often related in a nonchalant, calm manner, as though to the manner born—such recitals of murder must be kept from the home at the source of supply.

One of the officials of a radio network—does it matter which?—asked why so a p operas are not kept from the ears of children? I ask you, why not? That was a very good question, probably spoken from the heart.

If one listened only to the radio, say for a week, he could easily convince himself that in the United States murder is a usual occurrence, happening at half-hour intervals, that most marriages are utter failures, that while crime does not pay, it nevertheless is extremely interesting, that there is always a third wheel to every chariot—meaning each family—that the greatest concern of wise women is to help young ladies out of scrapes with married men.

On a Sunday afternoon, during the winter, crime comes on early, on the assumption, I suppose, that no one goes to church any more, certainly not to vespers. What a beautiful family picture: Mother is reading a 25-cent book on murder; father is listening to one murder on a network and John and Jane to another. Thus, the Sabbath is devoted to holy thoughts and polite doings, particularly when some raucous, eerie laugh comes into the room.

The Tribune may be partially correct. The struggle of the American colonies toward unity does not prove the UN will be successful. One does not derive proof or prediction from history.

But the Tribune may be doing grave damage to the hope which can be soundly derived from our early struggles. In explaining the differences between colonial America and the present world situation the newspaper minimizes difficulties of the earlier period. To achieve unity was a tremendous accomplishment in the face of formidable obstacles, an accomplishment which should lend encouragement no matter how difficult the obstacles now. If the task today is more formidable, it is none the less urgent. Consequences of its failure may be more disastrous.

Price Control Return
Remote Despite Costs

Marshall Plan Could Bring Labor Shortage

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Despite soaring prices, do not look for any restoration of government price controls. There is virtually no chance that they will come back.

Congressional leaders of both parties are convinced that the American people would never stand for a return of the OPA or anything like it in the peacetime economy. Although a control program might get labor support, the entire business community could be expected to fight it vigorously and effectively.

However, one step against rising prices may be in the form of tightening of export controls. The government may see fit to act in response to the growing protest against sending American goods out of the country in a period of domestic scarcity.

Another, less tangible move may be a step-up in the administration's pleas to business for price reductions. These pleas, begun months ago, have thus far failed to produce any clear cut result.

Incidentally, the Marshall Plan for aiding Europe may contribute to even higher prices here at home. Shipments of supplies overseas can be expected to increase demand here, and when demand goes up, so do prices.

Many government economists feel that the world aid program and the domestic price situation are closely united. They say the American consumer is going to pay for European aid through higher prices for almost everything he buys.

MANPOWER SHORTAGE?—Although United States employment already is at the peak level of around 60 million jobs, federal officials are talking about a further climb and the possibility of a manpower shortage next year.

The key to the situation is the Marshall Plan.

At the present time an estimated five million United States workers are engaged in the direct production of goods for export. But if the country embarks on a broad-scale aid program, such as envisioned by Secretary of State George C. Marshall, federal employment experts believe many more workers will be needed to turn out the materials to be sent abroad.

There will be a slump in employment in export production should the Marshall Plan be dropped and exports take a nose dive next year. Exports fell off slightly in June and July but not seriously enough to affect employment.

BACK IN NOVEMBER.—The prediction on Capitol Hill is that Congress will return to Washington in November to tackle stop-gap aid to Europe.

Some prognosticators say the date will be Nov. 3 or 10. It is anticipated that key committees will be called back several weeks before the session opens to pave the way for the enactment of emergency legislation.

Senator Ralph E. Flanigan (R), Vermont, has suggested that to prevent time being wasted, the president hold conferences with the committees and outline the emergency problems he wants action on once the session opens.

The committees which will probably be called back are those of foreign affairs in the House and Senate.

By conferring with the administration and holding early hearings, they could have the necessary legislation ready for action when the session gets going.

The appropriations committees of both Houses would not act until after Congress had authorized new funds, but they could hold their hearings simultaneously with those of the foreign affairs committee in the interest of time. Such action is rare, however.

Should Congress be called back, technically it will mean only a resumption of the session just ended, and not a special session. Congress did not adjourn in July, but merely recessed until Jan. 2. The second regular session is scheduled to open Jan. 6.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The National Broadcasting company has reached the conclusion that a heavy diet of murder for children is not particularly beneficial to them, their parents or the country in which they live. They will postpone murder until 9:30 p.m., EST after January 1. Children interested in murder may have their fill of it until the new schedule goes into effect, although it is difficult to understand why if murder on the radio for children becomes carbolic acid on January 1, it is not carbolic acid today.

Meanwhile, it seems that Columbia, Mutual and American disagree with the N.B.C. They, it would appear, believe that murder is good for children at any time of the day or night, along with chewing gum, breakfast foods, and exterminators of body odors. Symptoms of Larynx Cancer

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

CANCER of the larynx is of two kinds.

One, called intrinsic, develops on or under the vocal cords. The other, called extrinsic, begins on the outside of the voice box and quickly spreads to other nearby areas.

It is of great importance to distinguish between these two forms, because both the treatment and the outlook for the patient depend on where the cancer is located.

Within The Larynx

The cancers within the larynx do not spread as rapidly as do those on the outside. Changes in the voice are almost always the first symptom to occur in the intrinsic type. These changes may amount to nothing more than huskiness and the tendency to clear the throat repeatedly. Tiredness and smoking make these symptoms worse, and thus the patient is likely to believe that the trouble with his voice is due to fatigue and smoking.

As the condition develops, however, the symptoms become worse until the patient is constantly hoarse. Pain does not occur until much later. At this time also, there may be coughing, shortness of breath, noisy breathing, anemia and loss of weight, as well as some difficulty in swallowing.

Percentage of Cure

In those cases of cancer within the larynx which are diagnosed early and treated by removal of the larynx, about eight out of ten are completely cured and have no recurrence.

The first symptoms of cancer occurring on the outside of the larynx consist of a feeling of throat irritation, a sensation of fullness in the throat, soreness and the tendency to breathe bits of food into the windpipe. A great deal of difficulty in swallowing may gradually develop. Ulcers or sores tend to form on the cancer, and this causes pain and swelling, so that the taking of food is often difficult. Pain in the ear, also, is an outstanding symptom.

Early Operation Imperative

Here, as in intrinsic cancer of the larynx, operation seems to be the only hope, but because cancers outside the larynx spread so rapidly, it must be done very early. Early diagnosis of cancer is always of great importance, but it is doubly and triply so when it occurs in this location.

Many authorities think that X-ray and radium treatment are well worth employing in arresting or curing cancers developing within the larynx. Surgery gives much more hope of a permanent cure.

While cancer of the larynx occurs most often in men between forty and sixty, this should not throw others off their guard because it may occur in either sex and at any age.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

S. A. F.: What is meant by functional disorder of the heart? My heart beats rapidly when I awaken and then stops beating rapidly just as suddenly as it began.

Answer: A functional disorder of the heart means that the heart is not working as it should. Your symptoms may be due to such a disorder or to a condition known as paroxysmal tachycardia. You should have a careful examination made by your doctor to determine just what disorder is present; then proper treatment can be carried out.

Education Problems Discussed At Meeting

Members of Monday club met in regular session Monday evening in the trustees room of Memorial hall. Mrs. Melvin Kiger president presided for a brief business session. Theme of the evening's program was "He said that there was only one good, namely, knowledge; and only one evil, namely, ignorance"—Diogenes Laertius.

Mrs. Robert Young read a paper on "New Problems in Intermediate Education". She opened her address by stating:

"The first instruction we gave to little children in the matter of safety from air attack, the first time they left their work to hide in cloak halls, basements, or under the desks, the first day they left their comfortable schools and ran through the streets to the accompaniment of screaming air-raid sirens, — on that day there was ushered in a new era in education. The youngest child in the nursery school to the senior in the high school was living in a shrinking world, but a very much more complex one."

"From that day to this, whether we teach geography, history, science, or English as the core of the curriculum is far less important than the urgent need, which everyone feels, namely: to teach children how, not what, they must think. Whatever the body of information, the facts contained therein, are important to the child only in relation to their impact upon him and his use of them in purposeful human relations. In short, he must know how to live in one world."

"Much space and time would be needed for a discussion of content material in the area of the social studies. Suffice it to say: many important changes will be made. New and entirely different texts will be needed. The entire area of the content subjects will be affected by the need of this new day."

Mrs. Young said:

"This paper will deal with only three important trends: 1. The organization of the elementary school; 2. The school year calendar and 3. New forms of instruction, and the preparation of teachers for it."

"The idea of pre-school has become passe. School is life and greater leisure time will demand a longer experience. The 3- and 4-year old may well combine with the kindergarten (5-year old), to make what is known as the primary division. Here children will work, play, and live together on a much less formal experiential plane, which will afford teachers an opportunity to recognize advanced and retarded abilities and suit the program to the need. What we now call 1st, 2nd and 3rd grade, are the skill years the period when children are formally grouped according to an aged and out-modified classification, which modern society in its carefree fashion demands, because it has always known it to be so."

"The 5th, 6th, and 7th grades, composed of 10-, 11- and 12-year olds are at the stage of learning, best expressed as "inquiring". There will of course be many other changes. We may be sure that the trend toward fewer subjects, and more unified curricula will continue. Fewer special reading and language periods and more attention to reading and language in "Content fields", less use of textbooks and more of wide, diversified reading, less mass instruction and more attention to the individual child."

"In some places printed letter forms have superseded the traditional and more formal reports to parents. In some cases the teacher writes an informal letter touching at various times upon habits, attitudes, skills, growths, and achievements as they apply to the child under consideration. Other school systems depend entirely, or nearly so, upon personal conferences with parents. In looking for ways of communicating with the home one should not disregard such important channels as teacher-parent conferences and telephone."

"This would seem to rule out uniform schemes of reporting. Some families have telephones; others can only be reached readily by mail. Some parents attend P.T.A. meetings regularly, others seldom set foot inside the school; some parents are illiterate and can't read a report card, others are college graduates. To assume that a single reporting device will serve all these parents equally well is to fail to take account of individual differences."

Mrs. Young continued "Better trained teachers are coming out of our schools and universities. It is a time for us to give recog-

In closing, she said "I am reminded of a sentence in the Harvard Report (General Education in a Free Society)—'Not all people are adapted to the highest form of civic life. BROOKLYN WINS NL PENNANT AS CARDINALS LOSE

St. Louis Struggles To Hold Second Place Over Boston Braves

NEW YORK, Sept. 23 — The Brooklyn Dodgers backed in gloriously into the National League pennant today, just one week before they meet the New York Yankees in the first game of the World Series.

The Dodgers could have nailed the flag to the mast as long ago as last Thursday by beating Pittsburgh that day, but in the end they had to let the Chicago Cubs clinch it for them.

The St. Louis Cardinals, dying with their boots on, still retained a mathematical chance to finish in a tie with Brooklyn until the Cubs beat them last night, 6 to 3.

Earlier St. Louis triumphed, 4 to 2, in the afternoon when Harry (The Cat) Brecheen won his own game with a timely single.

The wake of the Cardinals was celebrated throughout Brooklyn early today as fans repaired to the nearest tavern to toast the winning of the Dodgers' fourth pennant since the turn of the century, but their first since 1941. The Brooks never have won a World Series. Johnny Schmitz, Chicago southpaw who also was a nemesis to St. Louis last year, was the lad who killed off the Cards last night.

After rookie Cliff Aberson's two-run homer off Murry Dickson in the first inning had given the Cards a lead they never relinquished, Schmitz relieved Paul Erickson when the Cards threatened and held them at bay thereafter.

A single by Ray Mack of the Cubs with the bases full in the fifth inning gave the Cubs a 5-to-2 advantage which insured their victory.

The Dodgers, tired mentally and physically since their successful western tour, can well use the coming week to rest up for the Yankees. They have been torn by emotional disturbances all year.

However, there were bright spots. Jackie Robinson's signing rocked the baseball world, but he became the "Rookie of the Year." Spider Jorgensen and Harry Taylor also justified Brooklyn's "youth movement."

After frequent stabs at the lead, the Dodgers took first place on July 6th and have held it ever since, a remarkable period of unbroken supremacy for the National League.

Ralph Branca's great pitching sparked the Brooks during June and July, and the Dodgers hit their peak when they knocked over the Cardinals three times in a row from July 29th through the 31st. These victories stretched Brooklyn's winning streak to 13 straight, and offset their August slump when the Cardinals were spurring to within 3½ games of the Brooks.

Then, on their final western trip, the Dodgers broke the Cards' backs by taking two out of three from them.

The Cardinals, knocked out of the pennant scramble, now

Canton McKinley Rated Leading Team In Ohio

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23—Canton McKinley, one of Ohio's all-time grid titans, emerged to-day as Buckeye sports writers' darkhorse nominee for the 1947 mythical state high school championship.

The scribes took a flyer on McKinley although the Bulldogs have played but one game. Their ballots in the first of a weekly series of International News Service pools rated McKinley the 20th best team at a class field.

Balloting was close throughout the remainder of the select list. Steubenville Wells, apparently in for a fine comeback season after a couple of mediocre ones, was fourth.

Toledo Libby rated fifth, one notch below its final 1946 position. Both have won two games this year.

ASHVILLE WINS IN SEMI-FINALS OF TOURNAMENT

Monroe, Darby, Ashville and Walnut were ready Tuesday to compete in the semi-finals of the Pickaway county high school softball tournament.

Ashville moved into the semi-finals Monday night by defeating Williamsport 9-8 under the lights at Ted Lewis park. Ashville took an early lead but in the top of the sixth Williamsport moved ahead with four runs making the score 8-6. Ashville won in the seventh by scoring three runs.

Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Monroe and Darby meet and at 9 p.m. Ashville and Walnut play.

sics in scholastic circles will pit the two Toledo contenders, Waite and Libbey, against each other this Friday night. Libbey nosed out Waite last year on a safety, thereby setting up a peculiar situation which found Libbey claiming the city crown while Waite was awarded the state diadem. •

DEADLOCKED for sixth place were Middletown and Augie Morningstar's sensational Mansfield sophomores. Both won No. 2 last week, swamping Newark and Cleveland East, respectively.

A hair's breadth behind was Hamilton's Big Blue, another two-time winner. The Big Blue featured fullback Harry Phillips in last week's 25-7 triumph over Zanesville. The husky Negro star made all four Hamilton touchdowns in the second half, one on a 95-yard kickoff return.

Columbus West's two impressive wins over Springfield and Upper Arlington were sufficient to place the Cowboys in ninth position. Arlington, undefeated in 1946, was a 40-to-0 victim last Friday.

Another charter member of the state's top flight, Massillon, was ensconced in tenth position after playing only one game. The Tigers edged Revere, Mass., 7 to 6, last week.

Other votes were scattered among a wide variety of teams as the scribes found it too early in the year to narrow down their choices. Chief support went to Columbus Grandview, Lorain, Fremont Ross, Portsmouth, East Cleveland Shaw, Barber, Alliance, Elyria, Martins Ferry and Dayton Chaminade.

Coaches Steve Brudzinski and Tommy Bennett will review the

FORGET-ME-NOT SALE SCHEDULED HERE SATURDAY

DAV Sponsors Sale Of Blue Flowers To Help Disabled Vets

Little blue forget-me-nots, "flowers of remembrance," will be sold in Circleville on Saturday by Orville G. Fuller chapter, Disabled American War Veterans.

Plans for the flower sale, the annual drive for funds for rehabilitation of disabled veterans of World Wars I and II, were announced Tuesday by Commander Edward Hutchinson.

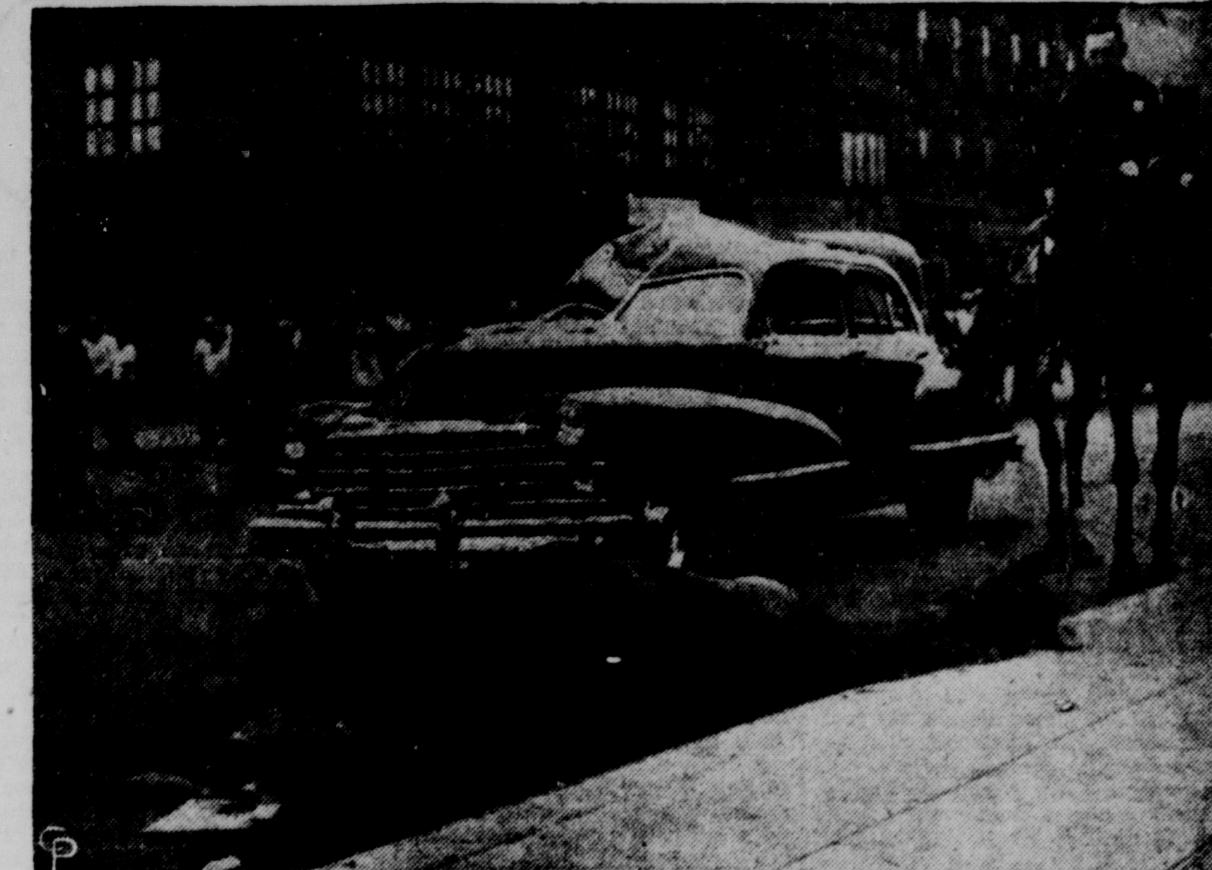

Headquarters for the drive will be at Memorial Hall from which a force of volunteer sales girls will canvas the city.

"ENTIRE PROCEEDS from our annual forget-me-not sale," Commander Hutchinson said, "will be used for the chapter rehabilitation program. To further the rehabilitation of disabled veterans, the service officer of the DAV, James Shea, offers free assistance in obtaining claims."

Mr. Hutchinson stated that the DAV is incorporated by an act of congress as the official voice of all men and women disabled in defense of the nation. He said "With casualties of World War II already exceeding those of World War I the work of the DAV with the returning soldiers becomes increasingly important."

COMMANDER Hutchinson said the forget-me-not drive has been endorsed by President Truman who stated "I sincerely hope the drive will be attended by every possible success."

"I urge the support of every resident of this community in the continuance of our program on behalf of the war's disabled. The marching years, carrying pain and suffering, have passed slowly for these men whose help we needed and who today need ours," stated Commander Hutchinson.

HAT IN HAND, Murray Feldman and his horse, Ben, pay last respects to Genesee, 8-year-old mount of Patrick Gillen of New York City's Troop D, as it lies dead in the street. Genesee bolted and struck Philip Fleischer's automobile (background) in mid-leap crumpling the right fender, hood, door and roof of the car. Rider Gillen was thrown to the pavement and suffered a fractured leg. (International)

BLOSSOMS SEEN ON LAKE COUNTY TRUCK FARM

WILLOUGHBY, O., Sept. 23—A Lake County woman reported today that apple trees, plum bushes, tomato plants and magnolia trees are in full bloom in her two-acre truck farm.

Mrs. John Srock said that the blooms started coming out Saturday and had opened completely this morning just as they normally do in the Spring.

Also, according to Mrs. Srock, trees on the farm have started to re-bud.

Mrs. Srock said that a hail storm three weeks ago stripped all trees and plants of foliage killing most of the fruits and vegetables. A long Indian Summer, she said, probably would give the new blooms time to produce a late crop.

W. J. McCauley IS SPEAKER FOR KIWANIS CLUB

W. J. McCauley, representing the social security office in Columbus, was the speaker at the Kiwanis club meeting Monday evening in Hanley's.

Describing the old age and survivors insurance program of the government, Mr. McCauley said all people covered are building themselves a retirement fund. He suggested that all who have reached 65, or are nearing that age, contact their nearest social security office and find out about their benefits. He also pointed out that wives can share in the benefits and, in the event of the death of a worker, wives and children and sometimes dependent parents are entitled to payments.

The speaker was introduced by C. E. Hill.

According to official Board of Trade figures, more than 42 per cent of all Irish linen exported in 1946 was shipped to the United States.

You Can't Wipe off this Grin

A boy and his dog are a typical American tradition. And that big grin belongs in the picture, too. It is the same wide smile that carried "grown-up" American boys to victory in World War II. It is the same grin you'll see on American football fields this fall. You can't wipe it off!

A smile comes easily to the boys and girls of this country. Theirs is a precious heritage of living in a land of freedom. Theirs is the great privilege of attending the free public schools, where they are grounded in the principles of the American system of Democracy.

All over America this month the children have been trooping back to the public schools. The Norfolk and Western Railway is proud that it helps to pay for the operation of these schools and the education of our boys and girls.

A great portion of the millions of dollars paid annually in taxes by the N. & W. goes directly to state and local governments for support of public schools in the territory served by the railway. In many communities along the line, the Norfolk and Western is the largest single taxpayer, and the largest single contributor to the free public school system.

It's nothing for us to brag about . . . because it's just another part of the American scene. It belongs in the picture.

While school bells ring this year, and the kids go trooping by on their way to the classrooms and playgrounds — remember their priceless heritage, and work unceasingly to preserve it . . . so their young faces will always be lighted with smiles.

Never drive your car past a school bus that is loading or unloading children. Slow down to the lawful speed in school zones. Observe strictly your local and state traffic laws. Watch out for the school children.

NORAH AND Greg! Norah and Greg!

The two names went, linked, again and again through Gail's mind. That was the way it should have been from the first. Norah was right for Greg! Norah was the sort of wife Greg needed. Not Gail. Norah would be another Kate, loyal, faithful, hard working, happy of heart no matter how difficult the going. Greg would be another Charles, and the four would live quietly and peacefully. She, Gail, was the interloper and must go away.

She had slid down on the floor when her knees refused to support her. She huddled beside the bed, her white face hidden against the white cotton spread. She was like a desperately wounded animal, alone in the darkness, nursing its hurts in silence and loneliness.

After a little—or it may have been a long time, she had no way of knowing—her dazed mind began to clear. There was, of course, no question of seeking a solution to her present predicament. There was only one solution possible: that she go away as quickly as she could. That she never see any of these people again: her father, whom she loved so deeply; Kate, so good and kind and warm-hearted; Norah—Her heart twisted with pain at the thought of Norah, but Norah was her friend. Of Greg she dared not let herself think.

She must go away, back into the world she had known, a world of beauty and luxury and comfort on the surface; but a world of insecurity and uneasiness and small snubs and larger slights that she dared not resist or defy.

She got up painfully and lit the lamp on the table. She brought her luggage from the spacious closet and opened the various bags about the room. And suddenly, she was very

NORAH AND Greg! Norah and Greg!

The two names went, linked, again and again through Gail's mind. That was the way it should have been from the first. Norah was right for Greg! Norah was the sort of wife Greg needed. Not Gail.

BUT she pulled her courage about her like a cloak, along with the tattered remnants of her pride, and thrust out her chin.

The others were at breakfast when she came into the dining room, and the bright smiles with which they looked up to greet her faded as they took in her slender, dark smartness, obviously ready for travel.

"Morning all," she greeted them with a pretense of gaiety that seemed to be quite convincing.

"Well, well, what's all this?" demanded Charles, and as she sought to pull him to go around the table to her place, he caught her hand and drew her down to kiss her cheek lightly.

"Going places, Gail?" demanded Norah eagerly.

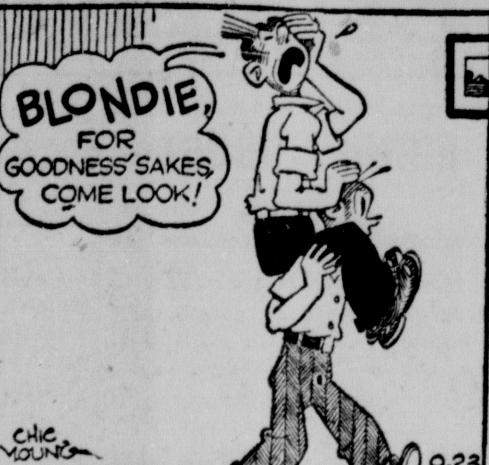

For just a moment Greg and Gail looked at each other. She knew he had said nothing to the others about last night's ugly scene.

"He could not, without explaining the reason for it—the letter and the 'silly bills.' Gail had counted on this and carefully prepared her story, and was grateful that she could deliver it without fear of any protest from Greg.

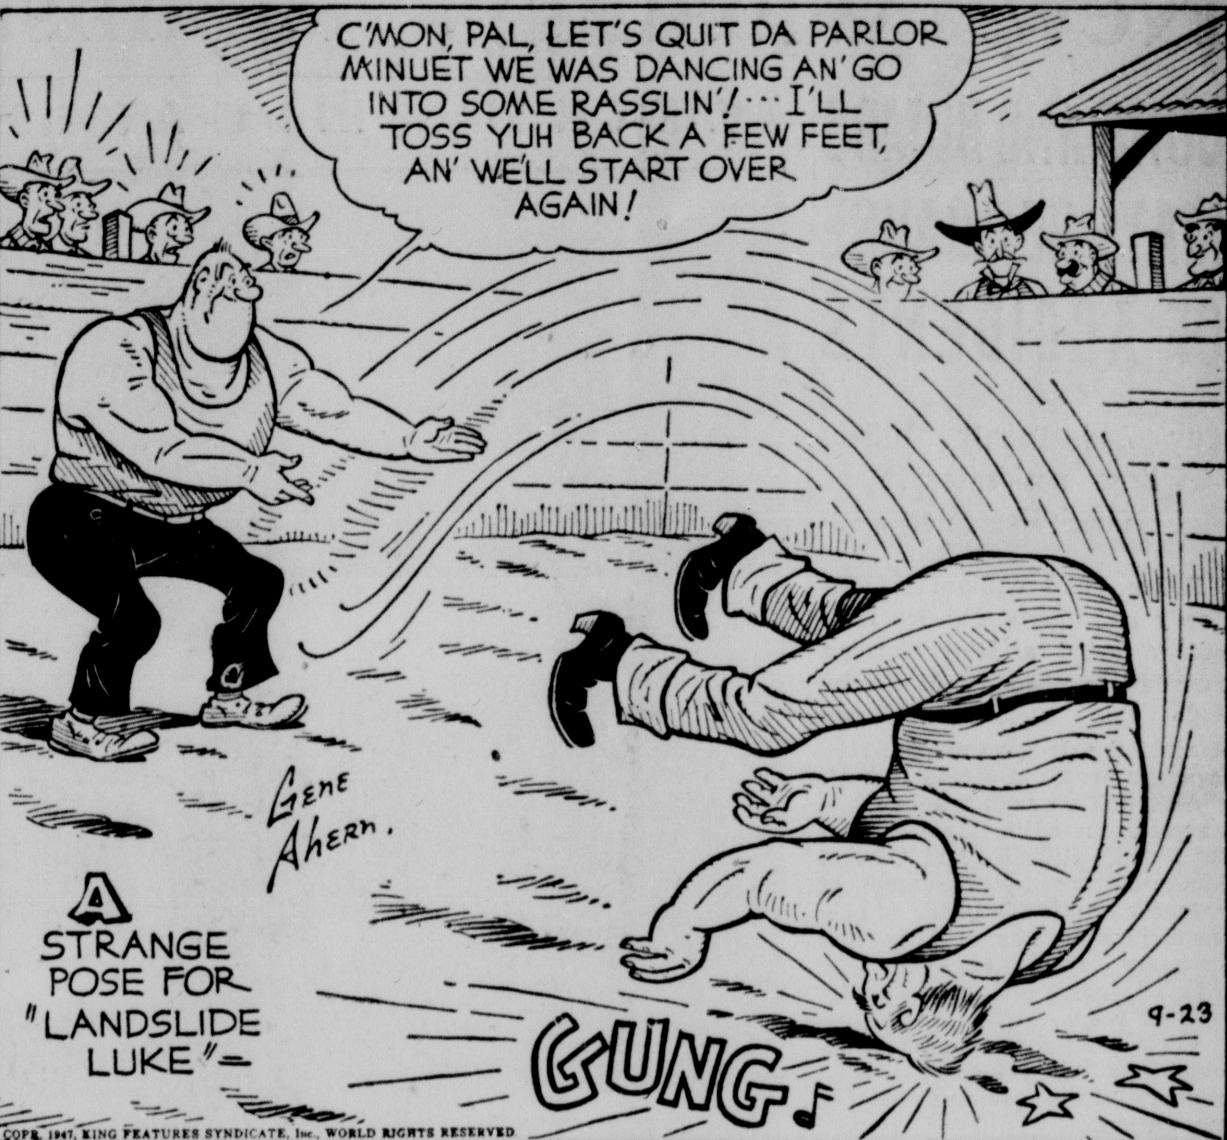

She took her place and looked at them, widening her eyes a little.

Red Foley, baritone star of NBC's Saturday night "Grand Ole Opry," made quite a record for himself as an athlete during his years in high school. In addition to his four years of stardom on the school's basketball team, he also won numerous cups, ribbons and other trophies in track meets.

BEATS THE UNBEATABLE

Canny defense can defeat lots of "unbeatable" contracts, and often does when a real thinker opposes the declarer. There is nothing which can upset a good player worse than to learn he could have made his contract, but allowed himself to be foiled by a sharp operator. The results are sometimes grotesque when he is intrigued into thinking the opponent's hand is utterly different from what it is.

North, with his woefully weak hand, decided a psychic was called for to impede his vulnerable opponents. Since his side was using the Vanderbilt Club system, he bid the 1-Club to open. South could easily read the psychic, as his own hand showed it was impossible for North to have 3-plus high card tricks. With his powerhouse, he asked for a possible slam with his 4-No Trumps bid. North, who had expected to take out into spades if his club bid got doubled, was afraid to call the suit after the No Trump call, so passed.

In the West was one of the world's greatest players, John P. Matheys. Realizing he had probably all the strength held against South, he planned to conceal it, leading the bottom of his club sequence, the 9, instead of the top, the K.

Able to count nine tricks, but not ten, South began by winning with the club A and running six spades. On these Mr. Matheys blanked both of his red kings and held his clubs. South thereupon finessed the diamond Q and the now singleton K won. Four clubs followed, on the last of which South had to discard one of his last two cards, the red aces. He decided Mr. Matheys had retained a guard to the diamond K, so held his diamond A, discarding the heart A. The heart K then won the final trick, sixth for the defender.

South could have made his contract easily if West had played normally, discarding the clubs to hold guards to the two kings. One red ace could have been scored, the Q could have thrown Mr. Matheys in, and he would have had to lead to the other red A-Q from his own K.

New Warnings Against Explosive Type Souvenirs Issued Here

GUNS AND BOMBS MAY BE CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS

City And County Officers
Urge Residents To
Check Mementos

Police Chief William F. McCrady and Sheriff Charles Radcliff sounded a joint warning Tuesday to residents of Circleville and Pickaway county against the dangers of explosive-type momentos of World War II.

Although no such tragedy has as yet occurred in this community Sheriff Radcliff and Chief McCrady urged observance of extreme caution in order to prevent possible loss of life and property from explosive-type war souvenirs brought home by war veterans.

They cited that numerous accidents of this nature have been reported from various parts of the nation.

The warning was issued in cooperation with a new Ohio committee known as the war trophy safety committee, recently appointed to wage an educational campaign to acquaint the public with the hazards of a certain kind of war trophies.

ARoused and greatly disturbed by the accidents and deaths already reported throughout the country — especially among children — caused by war trophies brought home from battle fronts by GI's, the War Department, the Navy Department, the National Rifle Association, and the U. S. Treasury Department, have sponsored a safety committee in each state to conduct a vigorous campaign to advise veterans concerning their explosive souvenirs and their souvenir firearms, and also to assist the veterans in registering the firearms as required by federal and state laws. Lastly, the committees will assist the veterans in drawing the "fangs" from the most dangerous souvenirs.

The war trophy safety committee for Ohio is composed of Col. George E. Young, C.A.C., unit instructor, O.R.C.; Paul B. Mason, chief of the technical information branch, O.R.D.; Lieut. Ralph H. Moore, inspection Navy material; John R. Lang, representative, National Rifle Association; and William R. Unkle, investigator in charge, alcohol tax unit, U. S. Internal Revenue Service.

That committee has announced that Pickaway county veterans and their families who have guns, shells, grenades, land mines, mortar shells, explosives, machine guns, or any other type of explosive souvenir, are urged to take immediate steps to contact the committee at 339 Post-office building, Cincinnati (2), Ohio, or to ask Chief McCrady or Sheriff Radcliff for advice.

THE NATION-WIDE campaign has been approved by President Truman who said:

"It has been brought to my attention that the War, Navy, and Treasury departments, and the National Rifle Association have joined in a campaign of instruction to prevent loss of life and destruction of property resulting from the possession of explosive-type war souvenirs. One need but scan the papers to see that such a safety program is badly needed."

The program is primarily one of education. It is regrettable that a step of this kind was not taken after past wars. This

GADGET USED BY WEATHER MEN FOUND BY GROOM

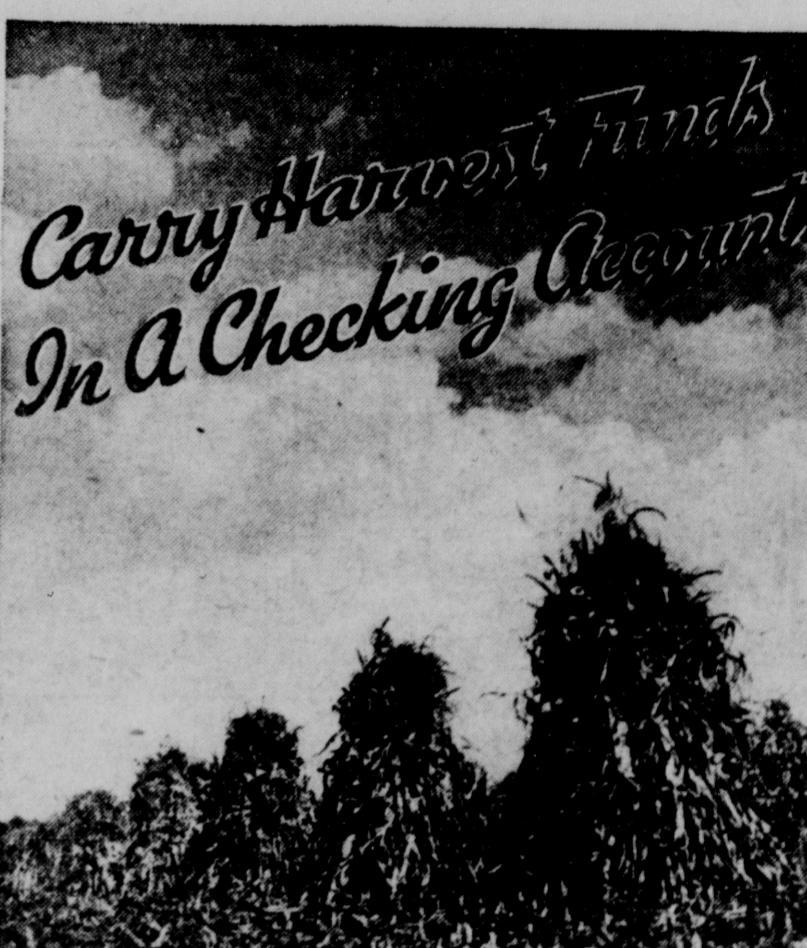

Weather testing outfit, the property of the federal government, was found Monday on the farm of Ned Groom, two and one-half miles east of Circleville.

The queer-looking outfit included a red paper parachute, a thin rubber balloon, a white pasteboard box measuring 11 inches wide, nine inches high, and four and one-half inches thick, and a mysterious thin slab of some unidentified material measuring 17 inches in length. At one end was a 15-inch wooden cross-piece with a small propeller device four inches wide. Attached to the device were wires extending to an electrical gadget at the other end of the slab.

On the outside of the pasteboard box was a shipping tag indicating that the contraption was sent out from Wilmington, Ohio, on Sept. 21, by the weather service group stationed there and instructing the finder to tag his name and address to the tag and to mail the outfit to a government station at Joliet, Ill.

New Warnings Against Explosive Type Souvenirs Issued Here

GUNS AND BOMBS MAY BE CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS

City And County Officers
Urge Residents To
Check Mementos

Police Chief William F. McCrady and Sheriff Charles Radcliff sounded a joint warning Tuesday to residents of Circleville and Pickaway county against the dangers of explosive type momentos of World War II.

Although no such tragedy has as yet occurred in this community Sheriff Radcliff and Chief McCrady urged observance of extreme caution in order to prevent possible loss of life and property from explosive-type war souvenirs brought home by war veterans.

They cited that numerous accidents of this nature have been reported from various parts of the nation.

The warning was issued in cooperation with a new Ohio committee known as the war trophy safety committee, recently appointed to wage an educational campaign to acquaint the public with the hazards of a certain kind of war trophies.

ARoused and greatly disturbed by the accidents and deaths already reported throughout the country — especially among children—caused by war trophies brought home from battle fronts by GI's, the War Department, the Navy Department, the National Rifle Association, and the U. S. Treasury Department, have sponsored a safety committee in each state to conduct a vigorous campaign to advise veterans concerning their explosive souvenirs and their firearms, and also to assist the veterans in registering the firearms as required by federal and state laws. Lastly, the committees will assist the veterans in drawing the "fangs" from the most dangerous souvenirs.

The war trophy safety committee for Ohio is composed of Col. George E. Young, C.A.C., unit instructor, O.R.C.; Paul B. Mason, chief of the technical information branch, O.R.D.; Lieut. Ralph H. Moore, inspection Navy material; John R. Lang, representative, National Rifle Association; and William R. Unkle, investigator in charge, alcohol tax unit, U. S. Internal Revenue Service.
